A RARE PLACE. Ma. Eutros —In your last paper there is an tem from the Philadelphia Son, stating "that in the village of Bronton, New Jersey, comprising a population of eight hundred inhabitants, there is not a drankard, and no place in which intoxicating liquors can be obtained.

ing liquors can be obtained.

Now, sir, "I can tell you a story worth two of that. In this town (Tishury) containing one thousand seven hundred and forty inhabitants, one thousand of which are conquised in this village, we are not only without a drunkard, and without a n place in which intoxicating liquors can be ob-tained, but we are also without a gambling house, without a billiard room, without a bowling alley, without a billiard room, without a bowling alley, and without a house of ill force; and elso, as a necessary consequence, we are without an alma lifestiat to our knowledge ever reprired aid from their neighbors. That we have five Churches, to gother, with a " pretty smart sprinkling" of school houses, may serve somewhat to explain these extraord mary moral phenomena to the " wiseacre in political science.—Herald and Journal.

THEY ARE WITH US STILL -- We love to connect together the living and the dead, to hold them at the some family, and hed that loved ones, removed from our sight, are still in our hearts.— We live to sit down in twilight's silent hour, and call up the loved forms of the early departed, and retrace with them the paths we once tred together. We then leave the present, and live again in the past. Old familiar faces the before the eyeold loved voices fall on the ear, and warm greetiogs of hand and lip bless us as in happier days. We are ug tin umid old scenes, and all scene un-changed. In such hours our sisters come around us, even the grave keeps them not back. They come to brighten the golden chain of early affection, to deepen the impression of words and inflacares, which have centrell due from our boyish days. How kindly they whisper in those sweet tones, which we can never forget. How lovingly they look upon us, in that so't expression of eye and fice, which we love to cherish till the tear be-dews our check, and the heart melts within as. We bless God for this victory over the grave; that death, when he reals the lip and chills the form, cannot hush that sweeter voice, nor blight that brighter vision, which lingers within the heart. For dark would be our way, could we not gather round us all the loved ones, and hold them in our affections, and feel that they all live unto God, all five unto us. And did their influence die with them, how much would be lost of sweet sympathy and gentle restraint, which spirits, as wayward as ours, could not allow to be broken.

MESSES. HYABE & GEHEE, INTANUFACTURERS of Grand and Square Planes, No 9, Eutaw street, Baltimore, beg leave to refer to the following letter from Mr. Knoop, the distinguished Professor, whose Concerts in Baltimore, and elsewhere, have given much gratification to the musical public :

Linabe & Gable's Piano Factory In calling the attention of the public to this annfactory, the uncersigned is impressed with he belief that he is rendering a service to the overs of music and conferring a favor upon the mblie, as by so doing he brings to notice an es tablishment of unquestionable merit. During my stay in Baltimore, I have had an opportunity of examining its interior arrangements, and can therefore, conscientiously give the assirance that in all that imparts despatch, efficiency and power, combined with beauty in design and exe cution, the factory of these gentlemen is unex-celled by any other in the United States.

The instruments made by Messrs, Knabe & Garlie, are built with the most consummate care taste and judgmen; their finish is exquisiteword, it is but justice to these gentlemen when say-that, while by their goods and acquirement they are competent-their industry, zeal and an bition, are such as to ensure to the claborations of their skill a degree of mechanical nicety, as ionorable to them as workmen, as it must be graf fying to the ameteur and artist.

The GRAND PIANO, which Messrs K. & G had the politeness to furnish me for my recen Concert, was of their own manufacture. execution of that splendid instrument elicited uni-versal admiration—its superiority was acknowledged by every judge present, and won for its constructors that applause which discriminating ninds never fail to award to distinguished merit GEORGE KNOOP
